

Certificate Seeking Students

Embry-Riddle recognizes that applicants may be interested in furthering their education for professional or self-enhancement purposes without pursuing a degree with Embry-Riddle. For these reasons, Embry-Riddle allows students who meet full admission requirements to be admitted to an graduate certificate program. Applicants who fail to meet full admission criteria may be considered for possible conditional admission on a case-by-case basis.

An application for admission, the $50 application fee, and official transcripts must be submitted to the University before the student is allowed to enroll in certificate courses. Certificate-seeking students must meet the same academic standards as degree-seeking students.

Graduate certificate program students may only enroll in those courses outlined in the certificate program. Additional documentation may be required for students who wish to continue their studies upon completion of a certificate. Contact the respective office of admissions for additional information.
